

Prototype 2

---

We have worked out something extra. We thought of a gumball machine. In the left machine, there are all the questions about homosexual and lesbians. If they turn, there comes a little ball with a question in. They read the question (an example: how do you react when your friend said that he/she has two mothers/fathers?) They can think or discuss about it. Then they have the choice. They can write their opinion on the paper and drop it in the second machine and if they have a question, they can write the question and drop it in the final machine. In this way, they are free but and they are thinking about the question. We can do this in a school, but also in public (sports clubs, railway station,...).
